DEAR OLE HORTON

Here's Mr. Leach and his class.

Here are our principal and assistant principal. Top: Mr. Leach. Below: Two photos of Mr. Taylor as he takes life éasy, and as he stands in the hall demanding silence from the noisy students.

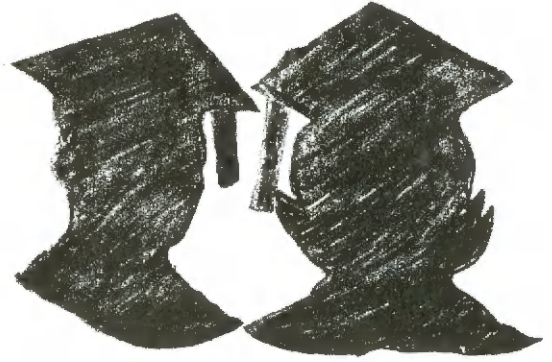

WE STILL LOVE YOU

The beginning, something new
A yearbook.
The first in fifteen years,
Yet for Horton;
Possibly the last.
What irony!
The creating of a yearbook;
The dissolving of a school.
Students stand hopeful,
Regretting.
Hopeful of a good Yearbook
Regretting the closing of Horton
In such conflict,
Should we rejoice or cry?
What alternative do we have?
Torn between the two:

Horton, we know, we love;
The Yearbook, a dream come true.
How do we choose?
The answer
Make the best of it.
Accept
That is what we must do!
The Yearbook,
Filled with memories.
It is now more precious than ever.
Captured within the covers,
Are memories never to be relived.
So for now, we rejoice,
Not for one year;
But for fifteen.
Horton, We Love You!

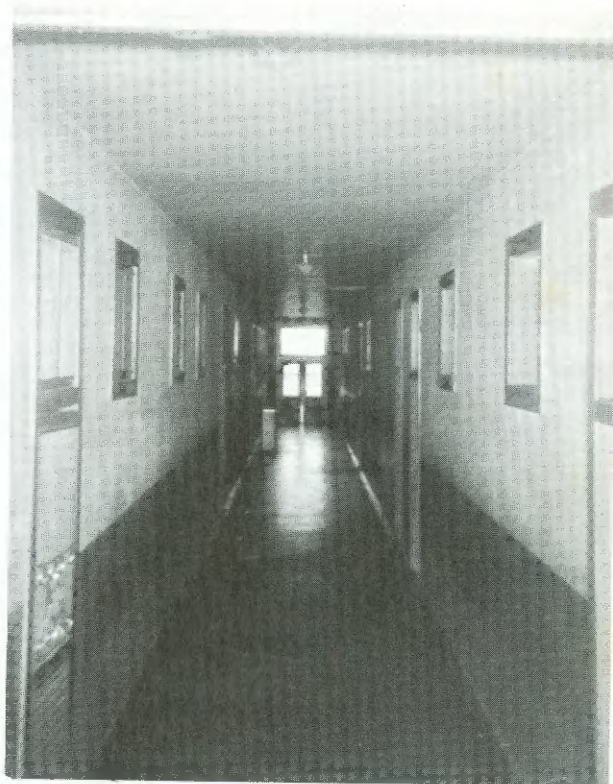

FROM THE SENIOR CLASS '70

The Seniors of 1970 are the first class to have the privilege of appearing in "Creations". We feel it would not have been possible had it not been for everyone concerned. To the left and below are Seniors waiting to take portraits.

WE THANK YOU

In the year of 1970, in the month of June, ninety-five students will open the door to the future, and close the door to the past. The past being those days spent, and molded into our hearts, the future, being that for which we have prepared for so long. Although our hearts will be filled with tears of happiness and sadness. We realize that leaving should be a time of happiness and joy, because it leads the way to bigger and better things, but as those last days draw nearer, our fear does also. Even if the last twelve years have been rough, they have in their own way been more than fulfilling. In leaving we hope that our Love and Gratitude will remain long after we have gone. Tears well up within us as we think of leaving Horton, and joy leaps from us as we think of what Horton has done for us.

SALUTE TO HORTON

We want to thank the teachers for the time they have spent to bring us this far, and the courage it took sometimes to say that we were wrong in our endeavors. For we realize, that it took a lot of faith, and patience. To Mr. Taylor we say, "Keep On, Keeping On!" Although we gave you a hard time, we realize you were only thinking of us and our best interests. This we want you to know will follow us forever. As the doors of Horton close in June 1970, we will leave, and as always, Horton, you will be older. To you: We say no matter how old or how long you stand you will always remain first and best in our hearts. And, Dear Ole Horton, when your doors shall close forever, remember, to us there was hardly a dull moment. To everyone we say: "We know no words to express to you what we feel, so from all of us we THANK YOU.

WE FINALLY MADE IT

Curtis Burnette, Charlie Cross, Steven Worley, and Malinda Johnson stand ready to accept their diplomas thinking over what the last twelve years have done for them.

Joseph Quince looks heavenward as he says, "I thought I would never make it. It's been a long, hard pull."

SLEEP, SLEEP, SLEEP

Harold Taylor, Wonda Barbee, and Carol Gill enjoy those extra moments of uninterrupted rest during their study halls.

THE COUNCIL AT WORK

During our Good Egg Week, the Chatham County Student Council tried to prevent crime in the school system. At Horton we listened to four young men tell the story of how they turned to the life of crime. Below is the singing group that accompanied them.

A REGULAR PTA MEETING

While attending the Year-book Publications Conference at Lake Junaluska, North Carolina, Edna Alston won an award for her theme copy. Here she presents it to Mr. Taylor and Mrs. Cheek.

Harrison speaks at our regular PTA meeting. After the meeting Mr. Leach and Mrs. Echols gather for a friendly discussion.

SENIORS AT WORK

Here are two of the three Senior girls who imitated the Supremes on one of our talent shows. Of course you know they won first prize.

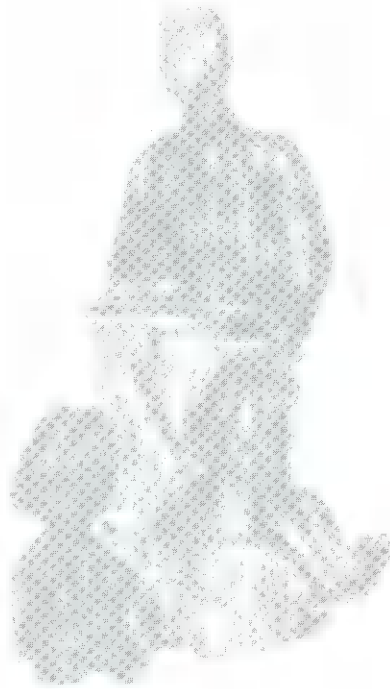

Here are Lillie Alston and Cassandra Baldwin hard at work on the Yearbook.

Here are Kenneth McNeil and Thomas Headen working hard in their Advanced Math Class.

STAFF

Producing a paper has been hard work indeed for the staff of THE THUNDERBOLT, especially since it had a small staff and inadequate supplies.

Money has been a problem, too, but the staff solved this problem by selling knick-knacks to the students. These went quickly and brought in much needed revenue.

The staff hoped to bring something to be remembered by the students: certainly the loudest voice in the school was THE THUNDERBOLT when it was around.

The Yearbook Staff was organized in 1969 under the supervision of Mrs. M. Freas. This was the beginning of a second attempt to have a school annual. In this book the editor and staff captured some of the events and activities that we have had here at Horton. It was almost impossible to squeeze 15 years into one yearbook, but we had fun trying. We are glad that we gave Horton a yearbook before it lost its identity as a high school.

The past few years the Band has really been great. With the leadership of H. D. Hunt and A. J. Spencer the Band really moved up. They performed in many parades and gave many concerts for the public to hear. It was a great thrill for the Band students, but it was even a greater thrill for the people who heard them. This year the Band consisted of approximately 40 musicians and eight majorettes.

The Band is guided by the following officers:

Mrs. L. C. Harris
Secretary

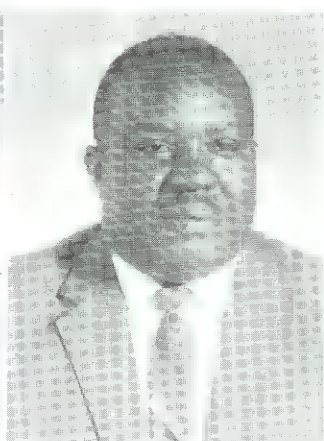

Not many people have noticed the full extent of the work done by our administration.

Their work didn't stop with the end of the school year, but it continued all year through. During the summer they spent time making out schedules, deciding on new activities and curriculum. Through the winter months they kept the facilities of our school running smoothly. These hands of assistance have surely been the backing agents of the school.

Education II

Creations means originality, expression, and pride in our venture. As Freshmen, this transition involved new learning experiences, intimate and vicarious. Through these experiences, we ascended the ladder of maturity, flourishing with the knowledge of those qualities desired by every young adult. Presented in Creations are some very profound ideas. Lurking beneath its organization are the ideas of perseverance, unity, integrity, and co-operation. We, the Freshman class have resolved to uphold and preserve those ideas set forth in our dear Creations.

SOPHOMORES FIND NEW EXPERIENCES

CLASS OFFICERS

The Sophomores were as eager as they were when they were Freshmen, but not as green. They were busy trying to get a meaningful education as preparation for a constructive, productive and "creative" life.

Inspired by their motto: "With the ropes of the past, we shall ring the bells of the future," the Sophomores put forth every ounce of strength and determination, in order to set forth an example for generations to come.

As in past years, some lucky Sophomores with high scholastic ratings were chosen by the Juniors to serve at the annual Junior and Senior Prom. The Sophomores that were chosen worked hard to achieve this goal.

Juniors . . . another name for Frustration. We looked at the glory of yesteryear, the drabness of today, the gloominess of that unseen tomorrow. The past reflected in the sunshine that occasionally broke through and opened up new avenues of hope. Hope built on the dreams and aspirations of many great men, women, and children. A beautiful prom; the purchase of rings; the exchange of pictures and autographs; the encouragement of parents and friends. Just as suddenly the pictures shifted and we saw the tests . . . the many tests . . . our uncertain futures, beginning of College . . . will we make new and lasting friends. A junior, a mixutre of joy and sorrow . . . Frustration.

CLASS OFFICERS

The Senior Class of 1970 looked forward to marching proudly down the aisle in graduation caps and gowns and to receiving diplomas with grateful but regretful hands. As our motto, "Not finished, just beginning," states we will remember the fact that walking down the aisle doesn't finish our course, but only begins it.

Realizing that our course is unfinished, the moment we leave "Dear Ole Horton High" we will strive to reach a further goal. For different seniors the goals are different. Some of us will go to college, others to technical institutes, and a few to business schools or into the military. Others of us will concentrate on a family or a job.

The years were long, rough, and sometimes they seemed unconquerable, but with faith in ourselves and instructional help, we made it through.

There are no words in the English vocabulary to express the thanks that the entire Yearbook Staff deserves. Without their help the completion of this book would not have been possible. There are too many names to thank individually, so to all that lent a helping hand — Thank You. To the Assistant Editor, Helen Green goes special thanks for her knowledge and quiet assurance. Our advisors, Mrs. M. Freas and Mrs. L. Grasmick also deserves a pat on the back for their hard work, patience and guidance.

To our publishers, Delmar and particularly Dave Marshburn we say, "if it had not been for you we would not have made the various deadlines." Your services and co-operation has been admirable.

Again I say to all who were involved in trying to make our first Yearbook in fifteen years a success goes my heartfelt gratitude.

To Horton, we bid you a fond farewell. If your doors never open again to the laughter and footsteps of students then we say:

"Our joy and hope remains within your walls. We will miss you Horton!!"
